each of them got married. At the age of 25, my grandfather married Alta Risha Biber, who was born in Strzyzow in 1864. According to my father, my grandparents not only had a religious marriage ceremony, but a civil one as well - very unusual for that time. At the age of 30, he left for the USA, the "Goldene Medine", to seek his fortune, leaving behind his wife and three year old son, Moshe.

Nathanel went to Brooklyn, New York, to join his in-laws, Alta Risha's parents and her brother, Shlomo Biber, who were already living there. Nathanel worked as a presser in a sweat shop, and after saving some money, he urged his wife to join him. She refused, saying that the USA was a "treifine Medine" and it would ruin the children. So, with his small savings, he returned to Strzyzow and bought a house and a piece of land.

To meet their personal needs, they planted vegetables and fruits. They had a cow, goats, chickens, etc.

Nathanel studied Torah all day and Alta Risha worked to support the family by selling material from a small shop in the house. She travelled regularly to the "yerid" (market place), in spite of her large family of nine children.....Moshe, Itzhak, Eliyahu (my father), Nathan, Taube Toni, Regina Rivka, Yecheskel, Haim, and Hune.

3. Her mother's name was Haya Sara. I know details of her brother, Shlomo, and her sister, Frida Hinde, who married Haim Hasenkopf(all is recorded later on). Alta Risha's parents are

Finding Your Ancestors' Town in Poland [edit | edit source]

- Genealogical records are organized by geographical locality. Civil registration (government birth, marriage, and death records) and church records (christenings/baptisms, marriages, and burials) were kept at the local level. Duplicates were sometimes sent to higher jurisdictions such as a diocese or voivodeship (province). Efforts to collect, preserve, and publish records online are generally carried out at a diocese or voivodeship level, or by archive jurisdiction level.
- If you do not know your ancestors' town, follow the advice in the Wiki article Poland Locating Town of Origin to search a variety of records that might provide that information.

Town Details Needed for Finding Records: [edit | edit source]

Once you know the town where your ancestors lived, there are some important details you need to find to get into the records. Your town may not have its own parish church because of its small size. So you need to find out the town name where the Catholic, Lutheran, Greek Catholic, or Jewish synagogue your ancestor attended would have been. Likewise, your town or village might have been too small to have its own civil registration office, so you need to find where people in that village would have registered their births, marriages, and deaths.

- Use mapa.szukacz@ to find the province, area, commune, and postal code of the town. Enter the town name in the "place" field in the right sidebar and click "Show". All information will appear at the bottom of the right sidebar.
- Use Kartenmeister@ to find the Polish and German province, county, Catholic parish, Lutheran parish, and Standesamt (civil registration office), if the town was in the area of Poland once controlled by Prussia.
- If the town was in the area of Poland once controlled by Russia or Austria, look it up in Skorowidz Gazetээр Online@ to find the parishes of various religions. Here are the instructions. Use the second option, "Viewing anywhere via the Digital Library of Wielkopolska".

10 October 1780

10 October 2010

On this day in history: The Great Hurricane, 1780

On 10th October 1780, the deadliest recorded Atlantic hurricane reached the island of Barbados, pounding the island with two-hundred mile per hour winds. Over the next week it left a swathe of destruction on the Windward Isles, the Leeward Isles, Puerto Rico, and Hispaniola before turning north-east and heading back into the Atlantic. The direct effects of the hurricane killed an estimated twenty-two thousand people: 9,000 in Martinique; 4,500 in Barbados; and, 4,500 in St. Eustatius.

The British naval officer Lord Rodney wrote to his wife describing the destruction on Barbados:

The strongest buildings and the whole of the houses, most of which were stone, and remarkable for their solidity, gave way to the fury of the wind, and were torn up to their foundations; all the forts destroyed, and many of the heavy cannon carried upwards of a hundred feet from the forts. Had I not been an eyewitness, nothing could have induced me to have believed it. More than six thousand persons perished, and all the inhabitants are entirely ruined.

Rodney was commander-in-chief of the Leeward Islands, commanding the British fleet in naval engagements against the French and Spanish as part of the American War of Independence. The hurricane destroyed eight of his twelve ships while they were moored off the island of St. Lucia, killing hundreds of sailors. One of these ships destroyed the hospital at Port Castries when the weather hurled the ship on top of it.

200 mile per hour winds
Estimated 20,000-30,000
dead

Destroyed 40 French ships
Destroyed 19 Dutch ships
